RESEARCH AND SCHOLARSHIP INTERESTS

Black women in higher education; first-generation college students; student success in higher education; intersectionality; community cultural wealth; retention; college access; diversity, equity, and inclusion.

RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

First-Generation Black Doctoral Women and Persistence, May 2018-August 2019

Qualitative research study, under the direction of Dr. Darris Means, using sista circle methodology, to explore first-generation Black women in doctoral programs and what contributed to their successful persistence.

Social Class and Identity, August 2016-May 2018

Under the direction of Dr. Georgianna Martin (PI), I reviewed literature and coded data for a research study exploring both the barriers and pathways to success for low-income college students, focusing on their social class-based experiences in particular.

Black College Women and Colorism, May 2016-March 2018

Qualitative research study, under the direction of Dr. Darris Means, using sista circle methodology, to explore the topic of Black college women and colorism, the messages they received regarding skin complexion, and how it impacted their college experience.

Women in College Environments, August 2015-May 2016

Under the direction of Dr. Chris Linder (PI), I conducted observations and interviews and coded data for a research study examining undergraduate college women's experiences with college environments.
